

CHORUS IN TIGHTS "NO WORK FOR LADY," HUSBAND DECLARES

Restaurateur Seeks Divorce
on Plea That Reform Efforts Have Been Vain.

Henry Kopp, proprietor of a restaurant, tells in testimony in the District Supreme Court, in connection with his suit for an absolute divorce from Alice Veronica Kopp, how he was shocked one night last September to see his wife in tight performing in the chorus of a burlesque performance at a Washington theater.

The husband recites in detail how his stage-struck wife deserted him for the spotlight only to tire of the "theatrical art" and beg him to forgive her, saying she would burn everything she had connected with the theater. He explains he had given her several chances to no avail.

Once, alleges the husband, he went to Kentucky with a letter of introduction from Major Sylvester, to find his wife. Then he found her, he charges, living as the wife of a well-known ball player. Subsequently he filed divorce proceedings, but had them dismissed.

Relative to his seeing her perform as a chorus girl, although she has a son seventeen years old, he avers, Kopp says he heard she was at the theater and hurried there to find her. He says it was "no work for a lady," and that he told her so, but she persisted in trying her "art," and went with the company to Philadelphia.

Mr. Kopp hired two detectives to shadow his wife during the Philadelphia engagement, and what they allege they saw is made the basis of the divorce suit. They testified before the examiner that the runaway wife was seen in the name of Miss A. Opp, and dined in cafes and Chinese restaurants with men.

Attached to the testimony are letters written by Mrs. Kopp to her husband while she was in Philadelphia under surveillance of the two detectives. One is a sentimental missive, and tells of Salvation Army music wafting into the hotel window, making her homesick, and how she could not see her dear husband "fixing the oysters."

She says that when she has finished writing she is going to have "a couple of fried" herself. Also she discusses how she is going to have her new black suit when she reaches New York.

"Once I thought black was for old folks, but now I believe like you, and you will find me in your favorite color when we meet in New York," says the epistle, which hints at reconciliation. Attorney R. McComas Hawken represents the husband, and Attorney D. E. Clarke appears for the wife.

WAITING FOR WIFE, HEARS HER SCREAM; CATCHES ASSAILANT

Thomas Clark Accuses
James Green, Colored, of Robbery.

Standing at a window awaiting the return of his wife, who had been nursing a sick friend, Thomas Clark, of 408 C street northwest, rushed out of the house early this morning and arrested a colored man who, it is alleged, had robbed her of her pocketbook.

Mrs. Clark said the man started following her when she got off a Capital Traction car at Pennsylvania avenue and John Marshall place. He kept close behind her, and just before she got in front of her own home, he rushed up and grabbed her purse. Her screams attracted her husband. Rushing out of the house, he saw his wife pursuing the alleged thief, and ran after him. He soon caught the stranger, and held him until the arrival of Policeman Lauten.

At the station the man said he was James Green, thirty-two years old, 36 H street northwest. He denied the charge against him. The pocketbook was found on the ground. He will be given a hearing in the Police Court tomorrow.

To Seek Change of Venue for Richeson

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Attorneys for the Rev. Charles V. T. Richeson, accused of the murder of Avis Linnell, are to make a motion for a change of venue of the trial, it was learned today. Attorneys who are to battle for the life of the minister, have decided that the public feeling in Suffolk county is such that an unprejudiced jury cannot be drawn, even from a long list of talesmen.

GARBAGE STRIKERS BESTED; NEW YORK CLEANS UP STREETS

Accumulated Refuse Being Moved, Old Men Are Barred From Jobs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—With the garbage strike completely broken Street Cleaning Commissioner "Big Bill" Edwards today set upon the cleaning of the vast accumulation of garbage that has threatened the city with pestilence.

The 2,340 men who went out on strike have received formal notification that charges of insubordination have been filed against them with the Civil Service Commission, and that they must stand trial. This is equivalent to dismissal. Mayor Gaynor and Commissioner Edwards declare the men cannot return to work for the city.

It will take until next Wednesday, working full time, to remove the garbage that now litters the streets of New York. Commissioner Edwards is working 3,363 men and 2,340 wagons. The strike has cost the city in one week $150,000.

Many Millions in Ten Months, Is Road Record

When Secretary Wilson attends the Good Roads Congress in Richmond next week he will tell the delegates that more than $44,000,000 has been spent in the South alone for good roads during the past ten months. Agents of the Department of Agriculture, under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture and the office of public roads, have assisted in stimulating interest in the various States.

"This vast amount of money spent within ten months," said the Secretary, "indicates the great interest now being taken in the nation-wide movement for better roads." The Secretary believes good roads will prove especially beneficial to the farmers of the South.
